Skiway Elects; Reports Good Season

At the annual Sunday River Skiway stockholders meeting June 20 President Murray Thurston reported another successful and profitable season's operation. A second lift had been installed to the top of the mountain, additional trails prepared, a new polypropylene rope improved the rope tow and additional equipment procured. Season and lift ticket sales showed a substantial increase and the canteen prospered correspondingly.

The management is very appreciative of the effective work of the operation crew under Johnny Rolfe, the skillful vigilance of the ski patrol under Don Angevine, the faithful service of the cafeteria under Dorothy York, the pleasant assistance of the hostesses under Virginia Cole, and the very necessary cooperation of Gould Academy officials, and of the directors at all times. Uel Gardner's ski school was very popular and a large enrollment is expected in the future. Trail grooming will proceed this summer along with other minor improvements.

From surveys made it is evident the economy of the town has been greatly benefited through the skiway operation which should be pleasing to the stockholders whose numbers are increasing as they realize the value of their skiing privileges.

Following this report, Henry Hastings was elected Clerk of the Corporation. The nominating committee proposed the following for directors and officers for one year, who were duly elected.

Directors: Kimball Ames, Avery Angevine, Paul Bodwell, Richard Bryant, Guy Butler, Theodore Chadbourne, Howard Cole, Stanley Davis, Henry Hastings, Paul Kiley, Roger Luce, Bernard Marcus, Milton Mills, Herbert Morton, Wilbur Myers, Vance Richardson, Addison C. Saunders, Murray Thurston, John Trivard, Edmond Vachon. —newcomers.

Officers: Murray Thurston, President; Avery Angevine, Vice-President; Wilbur Myers, Treasurer; Guy Butler, Member of the Executive Committee.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The highway crew finished spraying bushes this past week. We ran a little short of spray because we used more than expected spraying railroad crossings.

The grader has been working on some of the dirt roads getting them in a little better shape.

The state highway department has not worked out the plans for our state aid construction yet so a final decision has not been reached yet as to the location of the state aid job.

Mechanic Street is about ready for the soil cement process and should have the soil cement base in Thursday. The curing seal of asphalt will be applied Saturday. That will finish Mechanic Street except for the emulsion which will be applied in about three weeks. The reason for the three week wait is to allow the soil cement base to take its final shape. After three weeks most of the shrinkage cracking has occurred and the final surface can be applied. These shrinkage cracks are a natural characteristic of soil cement and do not hurt the finished road any.

Michael Houlihan

News from Citizen correspondents should be sent a day earlier next week. Reports of week end events must be received by Tuesday morning. The Citizen office will be closed Wednesday, July 4, and the Citizen will be published at the usual time Thursday.

BELL TELSTAR STATION IN OVERSEA TV IN JULY

The Bell Telephone System's Telstar station at Andover will play a vital part in the first live transatlantic television programs to be transmitted in July by a communications satellite.

Two programs will be included, an American one to be sent to Europe, and a European show to be beamed to the United States.

Three American television networks and European broadcasters will cooperate on the project.

The American Telephone and Telegraph's Telstar satellite will be launched by an Atlas rocket from Cape Canaveral by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The launching is planned for early July.

The American program will be coordinated in New York and sent by cable to Andover where it will be beamed by microwave to the satellite.

First Two NTL Sessions Ending Friday

During the two-week period, June 17-29, the National Training Laboratories, National Education Association, Washington, D. C., has been conducting two Laboratories at Bethel. The first, the Third Annual Training Program in College Leadership, held at Gould Academy, consists of 26 college faculty and personnel workers and 98 college students from 29 colleges and universities throughout the nation. Participants at this third annual Laboratory were selected as teams, groups of from one to three faculty members and from one to 10 students from each university making up the 26 teams.

Dr. Ronald Lippitt, dean of this College Lab, states, "We are concerned with building a more dynamic relationship between students and faculty as a basis for improved learning and with developing new practices whereby students and faculty working together can make fuller use of the total student environment for learning. Essentially, we are exploring the potential for small teams of students and faculty to modify significantly the learning and leadership patterns of a total campus culture. What happens during the intensive collaborative learning experience at Bethel is important; what may follow on individual campuses as new learnings are applied is even more important. Considerable time is being spent at Bethel in concrete planning of follow-up campus activities. Experience over the past two summers has suggested the effectiveness of the two-week program in initiating continuing learning and improvement."

Colleges and universities participating are: American University, Austin College, Boston University, Brigham Young University, Case Institute of Technology, City College of New York, Cornell University, Dartmouth College, George Williams College, Hunter College, Lesley College, Mills College, North Carolina State College, Northeastern University, Northern Illinois University, Ohio State University, Pennsylvania State University, Southern Illinois University, Springfield College, State University of New York (College of Education), Tulane University, University of Bridgeport, University of Cincinnati, University of Delaware, University of North Carolina, University of Texas, University of Utah, and Western College.

The second Laboratory being held at this time is Session I of the Sixteenth Annual Laboratory in Human Relations Training. Training sessions of this Laboratory are being held at the NTL Conference Center; participants are living and boarding at the Conference Center, and at Bethel Inn, Norseman Inn, Sudbury Inn, Brown's Tourist Home, Conrad's Tourist Home and Ramsell's Tourist Home.

This Laboratory consists of 95 participants from a wide variety of fields, occupations, and backgrounds, among which are industry, education, business, government, national organizations, and churches. The seven-man staff for this session, as for all NTL Labs, is drawn from colleges and universities throughout the country, including Lesley College, Indiana University Medical Center, San Francisco State College, University of Utah, Boston University, Purdue University, and New York University.

The two current laboratories are part of a series of ten laboratories which are being conducted at Bethel by NTL, between June 17 and August 10.

Good Trick If They Do It

...and they did it!

Hudson, N.Y.—Blender girders of steel suspended from a lowering helicopter have been providing a daily drama along the banks of the Hudson, just south of this city.

When giant cranes lifted steel sections to a towering 200 feet, the task grew too difficult for ordinary methods. So a Sikorsky helicopter was brought to complete it.

From a nearby landing area, the aircraft ferried sections to the tower top, over 500 feet above ground. Lanes, barely visible from the ground and held by safety belts, remained hunched forward as the heliporter hoisted the sections into place. It was a daredevil job worthy of a circus performance.

The project, built by Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation, is part of a $45,000,000 transmission line extending from Niagara Falls to New York City. The whole unit is a segment in a vast transmission network interconnecting the power grids throughout the Northeast.

CRISIS

By Senator Harry Flood Byrd, Virginia.

It was with a good deal of reluctance and, I will say, a good deal of sadness, that, as chairman of the Finance Committee on Finance, I was compelled to ask for an increase in the Federal debt limit from $298 to $300 billion. I did so because I was told that unless the debt limit was increased, our Government could not pay its current bills.

I do not recall in my long service on the Senate Committee on Finance that there ever before arose such a condition as was presented to us.

It had to be recognized that the failure of our Government to pay its bills would create chaos at home and abroad in the free world.

Such a situation could not be permitted to occur.

Under circumstances which had been allowed to develop, we were virtually forced to go more deeply into debt to pay running expenses coming due in excess of revenue income.

Federal financial crises such as this are recurring with increasing frequency. The latest of the bill raised the limit on the Federal debt $7 billion in 8 months.

A year ago the debt limit was $293 billion. In June, 1961, at the request of the administration, the debt limit was raised to $298 billion. Now, at the request of the administration, it has been raised to $300 billion.

Treasury figures relating to the recent $2 billion deficit—excess charge deterioration in the fiscal situation has been projected since the June request to raise the debt limit to $300 billion.

Necessary spending to keep the Federal Government operating in the first 7 months of the year through January, 1962, was $34 billion higher than last year. Expenditures increased $24 billion, and military expenditures increased $15 billion.

We have been the policeman, the banker, and the clerk for the free world since World War II. Recent figures showed $1.4 billion in foreign aid has been provided.

Meanwhile we are faced with a mounting deficit in the balance of international payments between the United States and nations we have assisted. It has now reached $4 billion a year.

This situation, in combination with domestic deficits which threaten or cause inflation, has resulted in a drain on the gold supply. We have lost 20 per cent of our gold in relatively few years. I emphasize: We have lost 20 per cent of our gold reserves.

The uncertainty of the dollar as a result of the inflation is a major factor in the world's economic crisis.

Fields are continuing; and the debt is at a peak never reached even for 4 years of global shooting war.

In addition to $299 billion in direct debt, we have accumulated contingent liabilities at home and abroad amounting to untold billions more.

Now we propose to underwrite the debts of the United Nations.

Before July, 1962, the administration is going to ask that the debt limit be raised again by $2 billion, lifting the limit by $15 billion in a year. As the situation stands now, this will be the year of the highest revenue and the highest debt in history.

It is clear that continually raising the statutory limit on the Federal debt is only temporary with dangerous deterioration in the Government's fiscal condition.

As chairman of the Finance Committee, and I hope I shall be joined by other Senators—I shall oppose to the utmost of my capacity raising the debt limit on additional $2 billion, to $300 billion for the next fiscal year when the administration says there will be a balanced budget.

A thorough examination of the financial position of the United States should and will be made by the Senate Committee on Finance before the next request to raise the limit on the Federal debt is granted.

Work on the examination has started. The Government's obligations are huge, complex, and world-wide. The study will be exhaustive in its concern with the hard facts as distinguished from fiscal fantasy.

An startling fact regarding the low importance of the budget deficits was that there have been 24 Federal deficits in the past 20 years. The deficit last fiscal year was $3.9 billion. This year, ending June 30, 1962, it will be $7 billion to $10 billion, to make it a total of $11 billion to $14 billion for the 2 years. It is my frank and considered opinion that there will not be a balanced budget next year. I would be willing to venture, as strongly as I can, the prediction that there will be a very substantial deficit next year, something in excess of $5 billion, depending on the first of July, 1962.

Is it possible for us to destroy ourselves from within? Every American should ask himself that question.

Nothing could come from the better survival of free nations, including our own, depends on the financial condition of this Government.

Neither our form of government nor our system of enterprise can survive indefinitely. All of us know that we cannot continue much longer to spend and spend, and tax and tax, and borrow and borrow.

Nothing new before Congress and one other branch of Government is more important than the question of the nation's financial structure. It is being examined. Measurable further improvement should be sought.

TODAY'S Meditation

Thursday, June 28

Read Revelation 22:1-7. He showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. (Revelation 22:1).

At the lower edge of a meadow on my father and mother's farm was a small swamp. At the lower edge of the swamp a little stream came out. It made its way down the valley over rocks and hills, through sunshine and fresh air, until it was purified. Joining other streams and creeks, it flowed into the great river in its way to the ocean.

That little stream, along with many other little streams, has been doing its part to help bear up the commerce of the world and preserve the lives of those who otherwise might have perished.

Christ's church is made up of many individuals who are being made more and more pure in the stream of a strong faith and an active life in Christ. Each, joined to others, does his part to help lift the burdens of the world and to bring other persons into the sunshine of God's love, that they too may be made pure.

PRAYER: Our Father in heaven, thanksgiving and praise be unto Thee for Thy love and tender mercies. Grant us Thy rich blessings that we may become pure and holy and may always be active in Thy work and service as we journey homeward. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thought For The Day

As we become more active church members, we become more useful to Christ.

MAINE STATE HATCHERY SYSTEM IS SUBJECT OF NEW BOOKLET

The operations of Maine's state fish hatchery system are described and well illustrated in a new booklet just published by the Dept. of Inland Fisheries and Game.

"Fish Culture in Maine" is a 16-page booklet prepared by Hatchery Dept. Stanley P. Lister, and his assistant, David J. Lister. Starting with a brief history of the raising of fish, it tells of the development of the Maine system from its beginning in 1820 to the present.

In non-technical terms, "Fish Culture in Maine" discusses the kinds of fish raised and the methods of raising and stocking them.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained by writing to the Hatchery Division, Maine Fish and Game Dept., State House, Augusta, Maine.

COUNTRY FLAVOR

PEACEFUL EVENING

At the end of a busy day when a man has finished his work with growing crops, it is good to sit in a wicker rocker on a screened porch and absorb the peaceful beauty of a June evening. The sounds of day have faded, quietness broods over fields and hillsides; the cause paints a picture in the sky.

The interlude between day and night is always good, but in the sixth month there is something that relaxes the tension of the day's activities. Shadows flick down the slopes of hills and blouses in the valleys; slowly the sunset paints a picture of flaming colors changes to pastel shades of grays, blues, pinks and purples. A mountain peak flames for a few minutes a beacon in the sky.

From the orchard behind the house, a robin carols its good-night.

A quiet June evening is a time to be savored. Man insists on rushing through his days. On farms, in teaching cities and on the highroads of a nation, man's interlocked and complicated activities seem to keep him tense. But a man, if he will, can enjoy a June evening and absorb its peace and blessing.

REPUBLICANS ORGANIZING FUND RAISING CAMPAIGN
The Maine Republican organization in preparation for this fall's election is now launching its 1962 state-wide fund raising campaign with a target of $140,000.

The budget provides for cost of supporting Republican nominees in the campaign with adequate use of television, radio, bill boards and newspaper advertising. In addition it allows for contributing Maine's quota to the Republican National Committee war chest to be used in the overall drive of the Party to increase its membership in Congress. Other funds are earmarked for adequate headquarters in Augusta.

ROY WOODMAN, Headfield, chairman of the Maine Republican Executive Committee, has held a planning session with the finance chairman of all sixteen counties. County quotas assigned are: Androscoggin, $2,500; Arden, $10,000; Cumberland, $25,000; Franklin, $2,000; Hancock, $5,000; Kennebec, $11,000; Knox, $5,000; Lincoln, $3,000; Oxford, $7,000; Penobscot, $17,000; Piscataquis, $2,500; Washington, $2,500; Waldo, $2,500; Somerset, $2,500; Washington, $2,500.

Woodman states the finance campaign will make use of two fund raising methods. The principal medium will be a broad base solicitation program conducted by Party workers in all cities, towns and plantations in the State asking enrolled Republicans and concerned independents to make a contribution; the second medium will be through sale of advertising in the Maine Political Year Book which will be published this October.

The G. O. P. Oxford County Finance Chairman is Senator Norman K. Ferguson, Sr., Hallowell. In a short time he will announce quotas for each of the county's communities.

TRAFFIC SAFETY BEGINS AT HOME!

Who Started the Accident?

Jim stalked furiously into the driveway, slammed his car into gear and roared into the street. Five blocks away he growled as a light turned yellow, then shoved his foot on the accelerator instead of the brake.... He paid a $375 hospital bill as the price of a breakfast quarrel.

Buddy, knowing that cars "have to stop," sauntered casually, even a bit insolently, past the waiting motorists in the school zone. Minutes later, the same careless, ambling gait carried him directly under the wheels of a pick-up truck.

Tom cocked his head attentively and grinned with pleasure as his "rod" leaped forward on the green light. He gunned around a car on the left—between two "snails," then toward the clear spot between the safety zone and the curb. Too late, he saw the elderly woman with the bag of groceries. It took only minutes to pick up the groceries—years to pick up the pieces of Tom's life. Murder, even when called "accident," is hard to learn to live with.

These are not actual case histories—merely examples of what happens, not hundreds, but thousands of times each year. Where do "accidents" like these start? At the last moment, when a mistake in judgment is made—or minutes, days, even years before? This is a question every woman should ask herself. The correct answer and the right action may save the lives of her husband and her children. Traffic safety begins at home, and the wife-mother has a real responsibility. With thought and love, she can create the kind of atmosphere in her home which will help send her husband onto the highway, relaxed and alert. By her own attitudes, she can make him a better, safer driver. She can "safely train" her child from the moment he can walk—by her good example. She can teach him the elementary rules of safety before he attends kindergarten. Most important of all, as she teaches him manners and respect for the rights and property of others, she can impress him with the fact that "moral responsibility" applies just as much to his actions as a pedestrian and a future driver as it does to any other phase of his association with others. If she can instill her child with the basic concept that he has a moral obligation to respect the rights of the drivers and pedestrians he meets, she will have given him the best possible protection against future injury, heartbreak, and unnecessary death.
